He couldn't speak before a crowd;
 He couldn't teach a class;
 But when we came to Sunday School,
 He brought the folks en masse.

And although he couldn't sing,
 Nor teach, nor lead in prayer,
 He listened well, he had a smile,
 and he was always there.

“A Dear Dad”

He couldn't sing to save his life,
 in public he couldn't pray;
 But always his jalopy was just
 Crammed on each Lord's day.

With all the others whom he brought
 Who lived both far and near
 And God's work prospered, for I had A Dad that's dear.
