Mother Has "No Occupation"

She rises up at break of day;
And through her tasks she races;
She cooks the meal as best she may
And scrubs the children's faces.

While school books, lunches, ribbons too,
All need consideration.
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

When breakfast dishes are all done,
She bakes a pudding, maybe;
She cleans the rooms up one by one,
With one eye watching baby;

The mending pile she then attacks,
For sake of variation.
By the way, the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

She irons for a little while,
Then presses pants for daddy;
She welcomes with a cheery smile
Returning Lass and Laddie.

A hearty dinner next she cooks
(No time for relaxation)
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

Morse's Telegraph due to Mother

Samuel Morse went to Europe to study the art of painting. He had scarcely arrived in Europe when he began to realize that it would be months before his first letter could reach his parents.

In a letter, he wrote to his Mother: "Three thousand miles are not passed over in an instant." Then he asked himself: "Why could they not be passed over in an instant?"

Love for his mother set him to consider the idea of quick communication; and he worked on it, till at last he gave to the anxious mothers of the world the means of learning how their faraway children are.

Later, he sent out his first message over the wire: "What hath God wrought!"
